

TO: Federal Communications Commission (FCC)
RE: 04-233
FROM: Jonathan E. Olson

Subject: Public Comment Regarding Low Power FM (LPFM) expansion

Air1 Radio is heard on many stations across the United States that use an FM translator service. Recently, a new broadcast service known as Low Power FM (LPFM) proposed to expand this service in a way that would allow the new LPFM stations to take priority over current FM translator service. This would mean that many Air1 stations may lose their ability to broadcast their station. This is greatly troubling. Air1 radio is one of the most clean, positive and family-friendly radio stations available and to have its reach limited by this expansion would be a travesty. I am vehemently opposed to any expansion that would limit Air1's broadcast ability. Air1 radio's positive message is important when so many radio stations have moral standards that are far from decent. In a time when the FCC is so concerned about decency on the radio, it would be hypocritical to limit or reduce Air1's ability to reach the public with their positive and moral message. If the FCC allows this expansion to happen, the public will again not have the chance to listen to clean radio because so few clean radio stations exist. The public deserves the right to have a choice when it comes to the radio stations they listen to. They deserve the right to listen to clean radio. Again, to expand Low Power FM (LPFM) would take away this choice for many because so few clean radio stations are offered to the public. I urge the FCC not to expand this service. Please do not take away the public's choice to listen to positive and clean family friendly radio.

Thank You.